WHEREAS the Court has entered a Memorandum and Order dated March 14, 2014, granting summary judgment in favor of Plaintiff HarperCollins Publishers LLC ("HarperCollins") on its claim of copyright infringement with respect to the work Julie of the Wolves by Jean Craighead George (the "Work") against Defendant Open Road Integrated Media, LLP ("Open Road"); and

WHEREAS the Court has entered a Memorandum and Order dated November 6, 2014, holding that HarperCollins is entitled to injunctive relief;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

1. This injunction and Open Road's obligations hereunder shall apply only to conduct within the United States, its territories and possessions, and Canada.

2. Open Road, together with its officers, agents, servants, employees, and attorneys and any other persons who are in active concert or participation with them, is hereby permanently

Publishing, or contracting to publish, the Work and any other work as to which HarperCollins holds the exclusive right to publish "in book form" where, in addition, the operative contract or agreement conveys to HarperCollins the exclusive right to publish or to license publication of the work for "use thereof in storage and retrieval and information systems, and/or whether through computer, computer-stored, mechanical or other electronic means now known or hereafter invented"; and

b. Holding itself out in any manner and by any means as an authorized publisher of the Work.

3. Open Road, together with its officers, agents, servants, employees, and attorneys and any other persons who are in active concert or participation with them, is hereby ordered, as expeditiously as possible, but in no event more than fourteen (14) days from the date of this Order, to:

a. Discontinue the sale or offering for sale of the Work through any sales channel whatsoever;

b. Remove the Work from its sales catalog(s), website, or any other source that lists works available for download or sale from Open Road, and to otherwise stop all
